

NOW SIXTY FIVE

Now sixty five
And still alive
But how the world has changed!
All our sense of normality
Has now been quite deranged.
We are all to keep ourselves apart
To keep each other safe.
We need to take the greatest care
Not to contaminate;
To wash our hands
And keep them clean
Before it's all too late.
To coughs and sneezes,
Spluttering wheezes,
We now add a deadly foe.
Please take every precaution
not to let it grow.
The coronavirus is spreading fast
Infecting more and more
All across the whole wide world
Shaking nations to the core.
There's not enough protective gear
To satisfy demand.
Social distancing and selfcare
Is all we can command.
